The Hammoth Barbeens and Picnic Was a Grand Success.

No One Could Ride Belgrade's Bucking Bull-Bozoman's Flour Makes Good Bread and There Was Plenty of It.

The A. U. U. W. barbeoue and picnic coursed at the park restorday, and fullied the expectations of the most canguine. The weather, from early morning until 8 c'cleck in the afternoon, was perfect for the celebration and was warm enough to suit every one. The city appeared in its neatest and best dress, and it would be hard to find any occasion in the past when elaborate decorations have been so profuse. Every business house in the city was made gay with streams of bunting, and from every flag pole the stars and stripes were flung to the breeze. Many of the decorations in the store windows were of a most elaborate kind. Joseph Peters' store on Main street created a great deal of attention and vide comment. One window represented handsomely furnished room in the cener of which was standing the figure of a roman dressed in the deepest of widow's reeds holding 'an A. Q. U. Other windows were also handsomely decorated and on every side the word walcome appeared. All the stores closed at noon and were not opened up again until 6 o'clock. On all the principal streets large barrels of ice water accompanied with the necessary drinking cups, were to be found in conspicuous places. At 10:45 o'clock the special train from Butte arrived over the B., A. & P. bringing 1,200 visitors to the city. They were accompanied by the Boston & Montans band, which is also the first regimental band of the M. N. G.

Immediately after the arrival of the Butte train the visitors were escorted to the corner of Main and Third streets where the other organizations taking part in the parade were waiting for the visitors. There was a slight hitch in getting the different orders in their proper posi-

Cox made a short address of welcome in behalf of the citizens of Anaconda, and in a few well-chosen words, told the visitors how glad every person residing within the Copper city was to see the large assemblage which becomed Anaconda by its presence. His remarks were tended a double welcome to Dr. J. S. Hammond, the grand master workman, and reviewed the hard work that the gentleman had done in the past year, during which time the order had made a record it might well be proud of. He said Dr. Hammond will soon lay down the gavel of the srand master workman of the state, only, Colonel O'Leary hoped, to take up the gavel of the supreme master workman of the United States. He said, we have prepared for you this workman's hammer, manufactured of copper smelted here, and the silver upon it also of the product of our furnaces. With the harmer also goes the necessary anvil that should be found with every workman's tools. He then presented Dr. Hammond with a handsome copper hammer bearing silver emblems on two sides of it, one a beautiful representation of the shield and anchor of the order, and the other side a finely executed monogram containing the letters A. O. U. W. The hammer also contained a rich ruby setting and the handle was of black shony. The anvil was a beautifully executed piece of work without any ornamentation. Both the anvil and hammer, together with the hundreds of initial badges presented to the visitors, were all the design and workmanship of the J. C. Keppler Jewelry company. The forging of the hammer head and anvil was done by the Tuttle Manufacturing company.

In reply to Colonel O'Leary Dr. Hammond sald they were heartily glad to be in the city and to accept the generous hospitality extended to them. They were in the city to legislate for the benefit of mankind. The organization by 1,400 members. He spoke of the splendid principles of the order which carried at the present time $8,000,000 of protection to the loved ones of the land. Much as they had done, there was atill a great deal of work for them to do. Taking up the hammer and anvil in his hands, the speaker said: "May this hammer and anvil be the means of forging out still greater measures of protection." Dr. Hammond's remarks were continually interrupted by cheers.

Colonel O'Leary then introduced Fre

The gift was a most generous one on the part of Mr. Cooper, and the thousands of people who partook of the light loaves yesterday all bore witness last night that the Boseman Milling company's flour makes the very best of bread. It was a splendid object lesson, and the proof of the knead being in the eating, Boseman yesterday won over hundreds who will in future use Galatin valley flour and henceforth be firm believers in patronising home isdustry, especially when that industry provides the very best article that can be found in the market. There was 2,600 pounds of breed in all, and Messrs. Wills & Gaose the bakers are entitled to a great deal of credit for the excellent manner in which it was baked. No loaves were ever baked to a more perfect uniformity and a but that made a person hungry to look at. Inside the loaves presented a pure whiteness and it was as light as it was white. With the bread and meat, coffee and pickles were served and for three solid hours the crowd ate and came back and ate again, until the three oxen and 10 sheep had dwindled down to piles of meatless hones around the carvers' tables. Everybody present, however, had sufficient as the supply was served with no stinted hand.

The baseball ground at the park was roped off and at about 2:3) the famous bucking bull of Belgrade was led into the ring. He had the same placard extending over back and sides that he wore in the procession. His demeaner was mild, and as he chewed over, for the second time, his midday meal, he appeared so good natured and easy going and wore such as expression of contentedness that appliestions to ride him were made by several persons, though no one appeared anxious to ride him first. Martin Johnson, the ice man, thought he would like to see how near be could come to reaping the $100 reward offered to the man who could ride the animal. The bull was then taken into an impromptu stall that had been erected on the baseball grounds and Measra. Johnson & Kennedy, the owners, proceeded to saddle the animal. The bull appeared to resent having the cinche of the saddle tightened up, and the action appeared to stir to the depths his quiet nature. Mr. Johnson then appeared in the archa, which was lined by thousands of people, and commenced operations that had the object in view of getting into the saddle. All attempts in this direction failed for a long time, as the bull would not stand the long time, as the bull would not stand still long enough for Mr. Johnson to get his fast in the stirrup. Finally the rider concluded to use strategy so he climbed up the side of the temporary stall and had the buil led into THE BUCKING TAUBUS.

The crowd was highly pleased and laughed and yelled itself hoares. Mr. Johnson is a good rider and has plenty of courage and his friends feel sure that he can ride the animal if he was allowed to use the saddle he generally uses.

John Brass, a young man employed at the Standard Brick company's works, next tried his bovineship. He chose to have the animal drawn up closely to a post, and mounted to the saddle from the ground. He had only one foot in the stirr rup when the man at the built's head lid the animal loose, while the attendant in the rear prodded the builty, and the first buck of the creature failed to unseat him, but about the third real good, hard the ardor of the other built busters and no more candidates effered themselves in the cause. Entertainment in the Evening.

When the bucking bull of Belgrade had defeated all comers and had walked off the grounds still a champlon the Boston and Montana band entertained the immense assemblage by playing selections from famous operas. There are 22 pieces in the band, and it is undoubtedly the best in Montana. During the afternoon a dance was in progress in the pavillion. In the evening at 7 o'clock the band played a few pieces from the stand in front of the Montana and then all hands repaired to the park to enjoy the evening pienic. The grounds presented a very pretty sight and as the evening turned out delightfully cool and pleasant after the slight shower which fell at 5 o'clock, the crowd was a large one. The trees were hung with ja myriad of Chinese lanterns and a merry time was enjoyed until after the last frain over the B. A. & P. returned at 12 o'clock. Entertainment in the Evening.

COMPLETED THEIR LABORS. The Grand Lodge Installed New Officer

and Adjourned for the Year. In spite of the festivities that claimed the attention of the members of the A. O. U. W. yesterday, the grand lodge kept at work nearly all day, with the exception of one brief adjournment. The lodge met at 9 o'clock in the morning and proceeded to the election of officers. Before all the officers were elected, however, an adjournment was taken at 11 o'clock to allow the members to take part in the parade and exercises at the park. The lodge was in session again at 2 o'clock and proas follows:

At the evening meeting the new officers were installed, after which the grand lodge adjourned sine die at 9:30 o'clock. tions in the procession, but the matter was soon arranged and Capt. W. M. Kelly, marshal of the day, ably supported by G. S. E. Wisner, W. J. Ashford and Julius Gertiser, assistant marshals, quickly had the procession moving. The parade was formed as follows:

The parade was a lodge and imposing one and the military appearance of many of the organisations created favorable comment on all sides. The company of Select Knights from Butte, known as the Silver Lagion, showed up particularly well. The Upper Works fire department had a thoroughly business like appearance, having with them their splendid horses, steam fire engine and hose cart. The bucking bull brought up the rear and had a large placard on his back offering $100 to anyone who would ride him. The line of march was east along Third street to Chestnut, north on Cedar to Commercial avenue, west along Park to Cedar street, thence north on Cedar to Commercial avenue, west along Commercial avenue to Main street, north along Main street to Park avenue and thence west to the B., A. & P. round house and on to the park, where the porcession arrived at a few minutes after 12 o'clock.

GIVEN A HEARTY WELCOME.

Arriving at the park the different organsuch as presents, almost every moment, some lively spots for discussion. He complimented Anaconda lodge No. 22 upon the wonderful strides it had made in membership. The excellent work it had accomplished and the example it had thereby set should be immediately followed by every one of the lodges. Mr. Jones called attention to the fact that the Ancient Order of United Workmen was paying out $20,000 per day to the relatives of its deceased members.

MRS. BOSE SCHANLANKER, GRAND CHIEF OF HONOR

Solution of the relatives of its deceased members.

Ten times every day some home is made brighter by the prompt payment of $2,000. The order piles no monuments of granite or bronse, but the abiding place of its sympathies is in the hearts of widows and orphans. In closing he said, when they shall have returned to their several homes, they shall hope to leave behind them a record that will ever awaken pleasant memories in their minds and hearts and as time rolls on, the friendship formed and renewed here shall grow stronger each year lasting until that summons shall come calling them to a higher and nobler sphere.

Colonel O'Leary next introduced John W. Eddy, chairman of the finance committee, and supplemented his introduction by saying that owing to the care the gentlemen in charge of the order's funds had displayed, in the 26 years of the society's existence not one cent had been lost. To the gentlemen of the finance committee therefore the A. O. U. W. owed much gratitude. Mr. Eddy responded by reciting an amusing poem with great elecutionary power and wound up by saying if it lay in his power he would like to give to each 10,000 bleasings. Colonel O'Leary then introduced the last speaker of the day, Rev. George Barnaby of Bozeman. Mr. Barnaby said that his auditors might have noticed when out hunting that if they scared up a rabbit it will often run a little way and then stop, and he said it might be the same with regard to his speaking. The order to which he belonged recognized charity, hope and protection. Charity for the world, hope for the future and protection for those who need it. He then made an eloquent and impassioned plea showing that in health it was the duty of every married man to provide for the future of his wife. In fervent words he
